3. Thank you for the invitation. I would be honored to come. My friend, [redacted] (she runs several art non-profits and has worked with Danny Hillis) and I will drive up Tuesday night, perhaps for dinner? And then leave Weds night after dinner? We are happy to share a broom-closet.

Thank you.

Google isn't flattering to anyone. For some of us you have to dig deep, for others less so. As for the information that lives there about you: ultimately you have to live with your own choices.

I don't mind inanity. I just try not to be insipid on top of that. Jeffrey Leeds once told me that left to their own devices some women have too many. And so: I have to live with MY own (inane) choices too.

What is genetic deception?

I am the sponsor. richard wurman was the founder / inventor of the TED conferences. I hope you are not frightened by the less that flattering google articles. I don't need to tell your editors. you already know.. nuclear is sooo yesterday., anyway. areas of research., brain, genetic deception. , music and its signal processing information . evolution and new mathematics. /

The conference -- from what I read in the program -- looks very interesting. The pairings are really inspired. And make me want to go back to school. How are you involved? And are you building nuclear defense systems in your spare time? Don't tell my editors my subject matter is inane. Lest we forget, I studied Comp Lit, not Physics at Stanford. Eat your heart out, Larry Summers.

Enjoy NM. I was just there to visit the Lightning Field.

I'm at Los Alamos today, my ranch in santa fe tomorrow.. the conference is only one aspect in a larger program filled with the super smarts. take your time . I was impressed with both your writing ability (I fear wasted on inane topics) and your presence. There are really fun and lucrative opportunites.

Dear Jeffrey,

Thank you for having us over for lunch last weekend. I'm sorry I don't have the manners to respond sooner. I had a rather packed few days in NY and now back in LA. [redacted] is life in a start-up.

I have to look at the program properly and then we can speak. I'll coordinate with Lesley.

All the v best,
